REFERENCE OF THE POETESS :-

गङ्गादेवी (Gangadevi) was the princess of Warangal and she was a famous poetess in Vijayanagara empire in 14th century. She is also called as 'गङ्गाम्बिका (Gangambika)'. The brothers हरिहररायः - बुक्करायः were established Vijayanagara empire in 1336. Veerakamparaya was the son of Bukkaraya. He became the king of Vijayanagara empire after his fathers Harihararaya and Bukkaraya. The poetess Gangadevi married the king Veerakamparaya only.

EDUCATION :-

The princess Gangadevi studied in the presence of the scholar Vishwanadha Datta who was the poet in the court of Prathaparudra and he was the author of Sougandhikapaharanam and at Agastyapandit, the author of Krishnacharitham.

ABOUT THE KAVYA :-

Gangadevi wrote many kavyas in Sanskrit literature. She wrote the famous kavya named 'मधुराविजयम् (Madhuravijayam)' which contains nine cantos. This kavya also known as 'वीरकम्परायचरितम् (Veerakamparaya Charitham)'. In this kavya the Nayaka is Gangadevi's husband Veerakamparaya only. Here the poet chronicled the victories of her husband Kamparaya and especially the victory over Madhura are well described. Hence the title 'Madhuravijayam' is suitable for this work.
